Your Comments or Concerns

I believe that there is some officers that are usually cruel to the inmates when no need to be and I believe that when it's time to be reviewed for parole they have certain packets that they give to inmates that they approve and the others they get a set off I also believe that the inmates that try the hardest and follow the rules and are trustee alot of them don't make parole I believe if you have good behavior for a year or longer and you are eligible for parole you and you have been making progress and have earned certificates no matter how many years you got sentenced you should get approved for parole but whatever charge you have should determine how your supervision on parole should be

Your Proposed Solution

Approve parole for those who actually show they are making a difference and require supervision to be more requirements for those who have certain charges
